The Devil's Legislature in the State of Wisconsin By Victor L. Berger.

HE legislature of the state of Wisconsin, just nearing its close, has often been called the "Do-nothing Legisla-ture." That's a misnomer. It ought to be called the "Do Everybody Legislature."

Over 300 laws so far have been placed upon the statutes of the state. These laws add little or nothing to the strength of the Wisconsin code as far as honesty and good government are concerned. However, they help to fasten the hold of big and little parasites upon the people of the state.

And of the two houses, the assembly-generally supposed to be the more popular house—was by far the worst.

The elections last year took place absolutely under the influence of the big capitalists.

Not only because there was a national election at the same timeand one with a marked tendency on the capitalist side to get rid of muck-rakers and reformers—but also because there was a United States senator to be elected in Wisconsin and every millionaire candidate had a number of assemblymen picked out whom he supported with his pocketbook and whom he continued to own throughout the ses-

And since an entirely new assembly was elected, the membership reflected this origin very clearly. It acted like a bought assembly throughout. The majority might be exchanged with profit to the commonwealth for a corresponding number of men taken at random from the house of correction or from the penitentiary in Wanpun.

Cheap country lawyers, each of them in the pay of some "interest," were the leaders of the various bnnches. And the speaker, Bancroft, was the worthy "president" of the aggregation. If that man had lived in San Francisco fifty or sixty years ago—well, he simply wouldn't frave lived.

The senate was only half renewed at the last election, half of the members holding over. Thus there were some LaFollette traditions and some honest Radicals left in the senate—"Social Republicans," as the Free Press called them to characterize their tendency to favor pro-

And there is very little hope for better legislatures in the years when United States senators are to be elected, unless the United States senators are elected by the people, or better still-entirely abolished,

Of course no one takes seriously the platform promises of either the Republican or the Democratic parties. No one even remembers what the Democratic party promised in its state platform. And no one cares, and least of all do the Democratic politicians care them-

But the Republican party is hardly better. It promised to enact an income tax—to give us some sort of industrial insurance and to vote state aid for good roads. Besides, amendments to the corrupt practices act were promised. Also protection and development of the water powers.

Not one of these promises has been kept. Not one of these planks

Not one of these partial has been enacted into law.

It is true, the income tax, industrial insurance, and protection and development of the water powers have been referred to special committees, with instructions to report to the governor, who may call a special session next winter. But it is clear enough that most of this is mere bluff—the "interests" are opposing all progressive legislation.

The manufacturers are now interested in the industrial insurance scheme as a money-saving affair for the employers. And we may get a law which will put the burden of the insurance upon the people at large instead of upon the employers. And although this would be helping the profits of the worst class of exploiters, we would welcome the measure because it would be recognizing the principle of social responsibility of the state towards the invalids of labor.

However, so far these special committees have not been appointed. And the chances are that on these committees will be appointed a lot of "business men," corporation attorneys and country lawyers, and big thieves and little thieves who know little about the so-cial importance of the question and who care nothing about the hu-man lives, the widows and the orphans concerned. It will be simply a matter of saving the employers some expense.

Otherwise very tittle was done that deserves even a passing

Only two constitutional amendments got recognition in this legislature, and these were measures passed two years ago and only re-peated in this legislature—in order to be submitted to the people at the next general election.

One is the proposition to increase the salaries of the members of legislature from $500 to $1,000. The other will limit the right of voting to citizens of the United States and will necessitate a residence of five years in this country instead of one year, as at present. Both are

Of the proposed amendments that failed the most important are the resolutions for the initiative and referendum and the resolution granting the right of suffrage to women—both Social - Democratic measures, although one of them was also introduced by Senator Blaine.

The assembly also refused a call for a constitutional convention.

The reason is plain: Any change of the constitution would make it harder for thleves to exist.

Of the laws relating to labor, there is very little to be said. Of the 74 measures introduced by the Social-Democrats, about 71 were killed—although the Social-Democratic members worked early and late in behalf of these bills.

Of the two or three that passed, one is a bill limiting work on all public contracts to eight hours a day. This is considered a "great victory for labor," by some. And considering the make-up of our legislature, that may be so. However, I might recall the fact that a much more stringent eight-hour bill passed the United States Congress in 1848, that is, 6t years ago.

The child labor hill was amended somewhat under the careful eye The child labor hill was amended somewhat under the careful eye of the Social-Democratic members. There are additional requirements demanded in future when certificates permitting children from 14 to 16 to go to work are issued. A physician will have to certify that the child is physically capable to work without harm to its future physical welfare, and the child's school principal will also have to declare that the child is efficient in its studies. A limitation is also placed upon persons issuing the permits and hereafter these will have to be secured from a factory inspector or from a judge of record.

The other child labor hill passed prohibits.

The other child labor bill passed prohibits children under ten years of age from selling newspapers—a much needed law. But the mere necessity of the enactment of such a law smacks somewhat of

No, sir, labor did not get much recognition in this legislature. And this is mainly due to the fact that instead of doubling our strength, as we should have done in the last election, the united capitalist parties succeeded in reducing the number of our representatives from six to four. This was often mentioned during the discussions of our bills as an argument against them.

So the workingmen, after all, have only themselves to blame. There were enough of them bought or coaxed to vote the capitalist lickets to bring misery upon all of us.

And some day more honest men may have to die upon the open battlefield than there are now traitors, who sold their souls to the capitalist parties at the ballot box.

Nor did the farmers fare much better. A pet measure of the farmers was the binder twine factory in the state prison at Waupun. This factory was bitterly opposed by the harvester trust, of course, because it was to sell buider twine at cost. The bills for additional appropriations to complete the plant of machinery in the building already constructed under the 1907 act were defeated in the assembly after a spectacular battle. And the plant, which has cost the state about $120,000 so far, will never be completed.

The measure was denounced as "class legislation," because it con-cerned several hundred thousand farmers. But any measure concerning the private graft of some water power by private corporations was all right. That was no class legislation. That was business.

The farmers have so long been simply tools of the "business interests" of the cities, large and small, that this ought to be a salutary lesson to them for the future.

But worst of all fared the city of Milwankee. The three charter hills—of which the home rule hill was the most important-were so conservative that they passed the senate by a great

However, when they came to the grafters' assembly they struck a

The "home rule" bill had an initiative and referendum clause attached to it which, tame as it was-it required to to 15 per cent for the initiative-all of a sudden seemed to strike terror into the hearts of some men with wicked consciences in the Merchants and Mannfacturers' association of Milwaukee.

And therefore the so-called legislative committee of that association, whose chairman, Gen. Otto H. Falk, had been a member of the charter convention and had voted for the bill, put up a bitter fight

The members of the assembly were flooded with letters, stating that "if the bill becomes a law, the city government of Milwaukee will be subject to the most sudden and violent changes, the most radical measures will be enacted upon the caprice of a moment, the whole trend of feeling will be thoroughly Socialistic, the police force may be cut down to a few men, property rights will be constantly threatened and complete unrest will be the order of the day."

And the lobby that went out to "influence" the members of the

This procedure was so much more remarkable since the charter convention, in its great majority was made up of delegates selected by the Merchants and Manufacturers' association, which took it upon itself to nominate the charter delegates for both the Republican and Democratic parties.

And the home rule bill itself was framed by a committee which, besides Victor L. Berger and Emil Seidel, consisted of General F. C. Winkler, Frank M. Hoyt, Rev. Judson Titsworth, Robert N. Mc-Mynn and Ald. Henry Smith—all five of whom had been nominees of the Merchants and Manufacturers' association,

Three of these gentlemen are corporation attorneys-top notchers in their craft. One of them is a very conservative preacher, and the alderman is an old ex-populist who "can't bite" because his reform teeth were pulled a long time ago.

The bill was adopted by the charter convention unanimously. General Otto H. Falk (the chairman of the legislative equalities of the Merchants and Manufacturers) voted for it. And the social Democrats voted for it, because the measure itself furnished the means for its own improvement.

But it was an insult to Victor L. Berger that the lobbyists of the Bill it was an institute Victor L. Berger that the populses of the Merchants and Manufacturers called this measure the "Victor Herger bill." It was an injustice to call it a Socialist measure.

If this bill had been drawn by Victor L. Berger, it would have given the people a good deal more than the mere chance of fighting for improved conditions some day in the future.

However, there is no ill wind but blows somebody good. And this reactionary assembly, by its dastardly work, must surely awaken the civic and social conscience of the farmers and the voters at farge, and help the cause of the Social-Democratic party.

The defeat of the home rule bill was undoubtedly brought about by the discriminate (or indiscriminate) use of cash.

It means the defeat of a conservative measure, which did not even provide for the right of recall. And this was termed a revolu-tionary Socialist measure by the Merchants and Manufacturiers and defeated by their lobby—as was also the "corrupt practices" act, be-cause the Merchants and Manufacturers could not exist without corrupt practices.

But what will these gentlemen think of the bill that will really embody Social-Democratic principles, and which the legislature of the state of Wisconsin will adopt two or four years hence—as a constitu-

Unemployment—The Problem and Remedy

Here is the answer:

The world-market, which buys the products of the world, is made up mainly of the workers of the world. When the world's workers cannot buy, the market place is empty. Enough to feed the others can be a feed to the control of the bushens and cellars. It is the millions who make be found in their kitchens and cellars. It is the millions who make the market, 11/2.

These millions of workers, in every civilized land alike, get a wage which is not enough to furnish a demand for that which the product of their labor supplies.

The workers do not get wages enough to buy back their product. If the workers got enough in wages to purchase their products, there would be no profits to the capitalist.

In order to make profits the profit makers must take out of the narket more than they put into it.

But the world market is like any other receptacle: But the world market is like any other receptacle: you cannot forever take out more than you put in. The thing will be empty after a while. When you take from the worker more than you give him, at last he has nothing to give, nothing with which to buy. THEN COMES THE PANIC.

Doubtless, there are other incidental forces at work in connection with every depression, panic or crisis. Take next the subject of agricultural ehemistry. Read this:

Although many aseful practical results have been obtained, this department of our knowledge is extended in a small contract. tical results have be tremely incomplete. Given a thorough knowledge of agricultural chemistry, and there is no doubt that we might produce more food with less labor. So that is another thing worth knowing.

Now I know your absurd modesty, John Smith, and how ready you are to despise your own efforts; and I can almost hear you say

"What can ignorant men like us do in these difficult sciences?" But, John, I don't flatter you, as you know, but you have brains, and good brains, if you only had the chance to use them. a few of you do get a chance to use them. There was William Smith, the great geologist, he was a poor farmer's son, and chiefly self-taught; there is Edison, the train boy; there was Sir William Herschel, the great astronomer, he played the oboe in a watering-place band; there were Faraday, the bookbinder, and Benjamin Franklin, the tramp printer, both great scientists; there was James Wat; the mathematical instrument maker; and Arkwright, the barber; and Jacquard, the weaver; and John Hunter, the great anatomist, who was a poor Seotch carpenter; there was Robert Fulton, the silversmith's apprentice.

Those men did some good in science; and why not others? Ah, why not? That is the question. The common people are in Ah, why not? That is the question. The common people are in an untilled, unwatered and unweeded garden. No one has yet studied or valued the capacities of men. We know that some few of the Edison and Herschel stamp have come out well, and some of us think that when a man has beaus he must come out well; but that is a mistake. Only here and there, chiefly by good lick, does one of our elever poor men succeed in being useful, and in developing his force—or part of it.

I will speak from personal experience. I know several men, por and unknown, who have in them great capacity. I have now in my mind's eye a young man, who might have been a very fine writer. But he is poor, and he has no knowledge of writing, no knowledge of style or grammar, and if he had would find it very difficult to get work.

I once knew a blacksmith, a man of strong character, of great probity, a born orator, a man of intellect. Often I have heard him, as he beat on the red hot iron, beat out also in rough, homely language, most beautiful and forcible thoughts. John, he could not read nor write. He was of middle age, he had a large famliy, he did not suspect that he was clever.

Take niv own case. I became a writer by accident—by a series of accidents—and not that until I was thirty-four. And I have done fairly well, and have been very lucky. But I am sure I should have done better at a quite different kind of work. And I am sure that if my mother had not taught me to read and encouraged me to love liter-my mother had not taught me to read and encouraged me to love literature. I should never have been a writter at all.

But suppose my mother had died when my father died, or suppose she had been an ignorant woman, or a careless one. Where would yours truly have gone to? He would probably be now in the grave, or in a prison. Yet he would have taken with him to the churchyard or the treadmill the same mind that is now struggling with this task—a task too great for it—the task of persuading John Smith to do his duty as a husband, as a father, as a citizen.

Now, at present the working people of this country live under conditions altogether monstrous. Their labor is much too heavy, their pleasures are too few, and in their close streets and crowded houses decency and health and cleanliness are well-nigh impossible.

It is not only the wrong of this that I resent, it is the waste. Look through the slums, John, and see what childhood, womanhood and manhood have there become. Think what waste of beauty, of virtue, of strength, and of all the power and goodness that go to make a nation great is being consummated there by ignorance and by injustice.

For, defend upon it, every one of our brothers or sisters ruined or slain by powerty or vice, is a loss to the nation of so much bone and sinew, of so much courage and skill, of so much glory and delight.

Cast your eyes, then, my practical friend, over the statistics, and imagine if you can bow many gentle nurses, good mothers, sweet singers, brave protectors, and clever artists, inventors, and thinkers are swallowed up every year in that ocean of crime and sorrow, which is known to the official mind as "The high death rate of the wage-carning classes."

Brave, ringing words are these! But alas, some of the political economists are hedging, abdicating from the throne of intellectual power, and gaining the scant comfort of a professor's chair while they sacrifice their own honesty of mind and accuracy of thought along with the great service which they might do to that society which has made them what they are.

If it is the necessity of profits which ereates the crisis, the panic, and the industrial depression, there is clearly only one thing to be done. Change the system which requires and compels profits, for one which can operate on a basis of equal and honest exchange.

The Minority Report of the British Commission on the condition of the Poor is hopeful in this connection, because it brings foreibly to the attention of the public the character and extent of the problem of nnemployment. John Martin gives a most interesting summary of this report in The Survey for April 17, 1909. The proposed reme-

All of these would probably help. But none of them, excepting the public works could be anything but temporary, not to say temporizing. None of them would actually do away with the root cause, by adding more to the purchasing power of the market in proportion to the amount produced, unless it were the public works. And the labor bureaus would only serve, as John Martin says, to secure "con-tinuous employment for those who are most efficient in the various branches," and would thus accentuate the present difficulties.

The city of Ghent pays to members of trades unions, who are unemployed, an amount equal to that which the unions themselves pay in unemployed benefits.

A recent number of the Nineteenth Century Magazine contains an article describing a proposed unemployed insurance which is being

Trades unions have long recognized the existence and the im-perative quality of the problem in their unemployed benefits. it must be acknowledged that none of these actually solve the problem. There is hut one solution which goes to the root of the matter.

THE TRUE SOLUTION. Socialism proposes to do away with the industrial and commer-system which PRODUCES the unemployment problem.

Socialism proposes that there shall be:

Social ownership of social utilities.

An industrial Democracy for the proper democratic administration of these social utilities.

3. Production for USE, not production for profit.

4. The progressive reduction of hours of labor as the productiveness of machinery increases, and the progressive increase of the individual income from the processes of social production.

Under such a system there could be no unemployed. But there would be an increase of leisnre, of culture and of individual liberty to pursue happiness.

In view of the gravity of the present situation in this country; in which Secretary Morrison of the A. F. of L. reported on May 1, 1909, that there were 2,000,000 men out of work, and Secretary Frellson of the Milwaukee Associated Charities reported that there were 15,000 unemployed in the city of Milwaukee alone in the month of March, the writer of this pamphlet introduced into the Wisconsiu State

Senate the following resolution:

Joint Resolution No. 9, S., relating to the unemployed:

Whereas, The people of the United States are at this moment in the midst of one of those industrial break-downs which periodically paralyze the life of this and other nations; and now prevailing this unemployment of useful workers tends to become increasingly chronic, producing inevitably among the workers that habit of idleness and loss of self-respect which is found in the slum dweller and the tramp; and Whereas, The nation is now suffering under the burden of an increase in crime, the like of which is known in no other civilized land, due, in this land and time as in others recorded in history, to the failure to provide a proper and legitimate field for the activity of its people; therefore, he it. RESOLVED, That the senate of the state of Wiscousin, the assembly concurring, do hereby instruct the elected members of the national house of representatives and of the United States senate, to introduce and to forward by all proper means within their power, such measures as shall be calculated to bring about: The immediate government relief for the unemployed work-

Whereas, in the nature of the industrial and commercial system

1. The immediate government relief for the unemployed workers, by the building of schools, by reforesting cut-over and waste lands, by reclamation of arid lands, by the building of canals, and by the extension of all other useful public works; all persons employed on such works to be employed directly by the government under an eight-hour work-day and at the prevailing union wages.

2. The loan by the government of money to states and municipalities, without interest, for the purpose of carrying on public works.

3. Immediate contribution bythe government to the funds of labor organizations for the purpose of assisting their magnificant.

3. Immediate contribution bythe government to the funds of la-bor organizations for the purpose of assisting their unemployed members, as is done in other civilized countries.

4. The establishment of a government policy which shall promote such other measures within its power as will tend to lessen the wide-spread misery of the workers caused by the impotence or negligence and misrule of the irresponsible owners of the sources and means of national wealth." national wealth."

This resolution proved a little strong for the Committee on Man-

This resolution proved a little strong for the Committee on Manufactures and Labor, to which it was referred, and so the author prepared a much milder one, which he offered on the floor of the senate. However, the Republican party was blind to the existence of the fact of unemployment. The chairman of the committee was "afraid they would recognize Socialism." Another senator talked about the "babbling brooks and the open fields calling to the workers to come and till the soil."

The Democratic members of the senate were no better informed

The Democratic members of the senate were no better informed or else no better disposed toward the working class.

And so in Wisconsin, which is probably the most progressive state in the union in such matters, the Republican and Democratic parties refused to even recognize the existence of such a thing as the unemployment problem. And the report of the labor bureau of Wis-consin furnishes absolute proof, from figures given by employers, that there is such a problem within the state.

It is to be hoped that workingmen and workingwomen will here-after know what party to trust with their suffrages, when the dom-inant parties show such scant knowledge and care for the life and la-bor of the working class.

Government Resting On Democratic Foundations

The voters of America must prepare for the task that is before them. If they want to run this government and do justice to themselves and posterity, it is the duty of every generation to perfect and conserve the civic and economic institutions that make for a higher civilization and to oppose all reforms based on error, or tending to undermine our liberties. We are here offering a luttle volume.

Thomas Paine, Apostle of Liberty

HE past week, on the 100th anniversary of the death of Thomas Paine, a monument was dedicated at New Rochelle, N. Y., with appropriate exercises, honoring the memory of the great publicist, to whom the cause of American independence owed some of its earliest and

The site of the monument, where the celebration took place, where distinguished speakers offered their tributes, is the old Paine farm, adjacent to the avenue named for it, where the original farmhouse is in progress of restoration. No man did more, according to his ability, for his country; and no man received less at the hands of his countrimen. It is doubtful if the cause of the American arms had succeeded in those times that tried men's souls had not Paine, with his forceful pen, stirred the hearts of the discouraged, ill-clad and half-starved soldiers. Paine, with his musket on his shoulder by day and suffering all the privations of the soldiers with whom he marched, wrote by the light of the campfire at night, in the dark days immediately preceding the battle of Trenton, that wonderful appeal to patriotism, the opening paragraph of which follows:

"These are the times that try men's souls. The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will, in this crisis, shrink from the service of his country; but he that stands it now deserves the love and thanks ot man and woman. Tyranny, like hell, is not easily conquered; yet we have this consolation with us, that the harder the Conflict, the more glorious the triumph. What we obtain too cheap we esteem too lightly: 'its dearness only that gives everything its value, Heaven knows how to put a proper price upon its goods; and it would be strange indeed if so celestial an article as freedom should not be highly rated."

It is known that Paine had much to do with the drafting of the Declaration of Independence, many ideas original with him being incorporated in that document.

Paine it was who first spoke publicly in behalf of the negro slave, advocating the abolishment of the system of bondage; who first proposed the founding of a democratic republic in America; who first pointed out the reality of human brotherhood ("the true religion of man"); who first advised the establishment of peace conferences and the ending of all warfare and the founding of a

Paine, contrary to the belief of many persons who know little or nothing of his life and works, was by no means an infidel, but an avowed Deist. His religious work, "The Age of Reason," which brought upon him much containely from the ultra-religionists at the time of its publication, is now regarded as quite a conservative book. Its publication in an era of bigotry did much, however, to injure Paine's name and fame.

A memorial calabration of the authors are the content of the publication of the content of the

The apparently modest and tedious work in the direction of realizing the so-called minimum program of the Socialist platform in no way or manner retards the realization of the more ambitious, so-called final aims (if there be final aims in hisman advancement), but rather builds a solid foundation for it.

The Socialist party has to work for the industrial organization of the proletariat, and at the same time limitations of trade unionism "pure and simple," the paramount importance of classconscious political action, and take the lead in such ac-tion in a thoroughly rational man-

A Splendid Sentiment

Thomas Paine, in the the finest words that ever came from his lips, when he was urged by his friends to leave France during the French Revolution, gave us something that might be always the motto for us. They urged him (he was in personal danger) to go lack to America, the country he had served so long. "Go there," they said, "it is your country." "No," he said; "for the time, this is my country." Then they quoted to him the old Latin motto that he himself had once quoted; "Where liberty is, there is my country." What grander motto can there be? But Paine, with the doors of the prison opening before him, thought of one still grander. "No," he said; "no, it is not my motto-not Where liberty is, there is my country," but 'Where liberty is not, there is my country," So said Thomas Paine, and the doors of the prison closed around him. Thomas Wentworth Higginson.

In his speech thanking the Democratic members of the legislature school directors in the recent election lim as a Republican senator, Billy Lerioner gave utterance to a phrase so dignificant that it was omitted or modified in the politicians are beginning to realize port which appeared in the morting papers. He was at first report—Citizen, the two great parties and: "In recent years the two great parties and parti the two great parties have been getting closer together until now only a fine line separates us."

The phrase is extremely significant. It is but an open recognition of something the Socialists have long been insisting was a fact.

Lorimer went on to say: "There are many things to be done in Washington where party lines need not be drawn." It would be cruel to insinuate that Lorimer was referring to the workers as the "things to be done." Aside from this, however, there are undoubtedly many "things to be done" where no party lines need be drawn. The list might be continued indefinitely. Wherever the interests of the producers and the profiteaters clash there are no party lines drawn between the two old parties, or, if they are drawn, they are so "fine" as to be invisible to the naked eye.—Chiengo Daily So-

This charter did not contain the recall, initiative or referendum, either. The men who formed it agreed that the city should be run like a corporation, that is, by a beard of directors who should have complete control of all our affairs. about the battle of the survival of the fittest, etc. The Glarners didn't think about that battle. The canton could not support so many people, so they called a Landesgemeinde (in America we would call it a mass meeting of the citizens) and debated what was best to be done. The result was, that they decided to purchase a tract of land in the United States, and the state of Wisconsin was selected, because the climate was similar to that of Glarus. The land was bought out of the funds belonging to the canton, and the people who wanted to emigrate had their passage paid and received a certain surn money. Thus is the story of New Glarus, as told to me by an old Glarner, when I was in Glarus.

In Geneva f met an American, a hrass manufacturer from Cincinnati. Oh, wasn't he an American, though! - He-had been on a six weeks' cruise in the Mediteranean on the steamer Moltke, and he had spent lots of money. Paid alone $76 for tips as he left the steamer. What did he see? Nothing at all: for he entirely lacked the education necessary to understand things here in Europe. He had made money, plenty of it, all his life, and now he was spending it. His mouth was as full of gold as was his pocket, and when he opened his mouth and the gold teeth shone, he reminded me of a heathen idol. There he was in Switzerland, but he didn't even know that Switzerland was a republic, that it had twenty-five cantons, that it was the best governed country in the world.

Campaign Deficit Fund.

Now, comrades and sympathizers, let us take a good swipr at the deficit this week by making an effort to get somewhere near the rhousand dollar mark. We paid nearly $500 deficit last mooth. Now let us keep up the good work, so we can do likewise each month from now, until Feh. 1, 1010. If we can continue on this basis the deficit will be paid and we will be in a position to start something. Therefore, all pull together. Remember that "United we stand, divided we fall."

Sept. 4—Co-Op. vs. 20th Wd. ment.

The following points were brought out and established by the evidence at the hearing:

First—That the health department did not send, or cause to be sent, to me, any copy of the Rules of the State Board of Health, as claimed in the charges; but that an extract from the city charter was sent, instead, which law does not confer authority on anyone to exclude a person coming from a home boldt and Washington parks, on Saturday afternoons and Sunday mornings.

its only presentation in stock this summer. It is secured by special arrangements, and should prove one of the most interesting offer-ings ever made in Milwaukee. By dint of paying a high royalty, Mgr. Brown has secured the exclu-sive right to the play, which goes on tour in the fall, and its only preon tour in the rain, and its only pre-sentation of the year will be at this time. The play has a wealth of trick scenery and unusual effects. MAJESTIC.

Carter DeHaven, known as the "pocket edition of Beau Brummel," will be the headliner next week at the Majestic theater, assisted by Leonie Pau and Lillian Rhodes, two pretty and graceful young women, and offers a pleasing sing-ing and dancing number. Other offerings: Emma Janvier, conteofferings: Emma Janvier, come-dienne; S. Miller Kent and his company, in "Marriage in a Motor Car;" Adele Rowland; Bob Adams and Bob Alden, in "Before the Party;" Will Rogers, Oklahoma cowboy, and the kinodrome.

ALHAMBRA. "East Lynne" will be offered by the Van Dyke and Eaton Stock company next week. This capable company is now well along in the fourth mouth of its summer season and has had phenomenal success. In this fine old play each member has a congenial role. New illustrated songs by Willard Foster and several special events are promised for the week. Thursday will be souvenir portrait day. Friday will be amateur night.

even cents to 25c ribbed underwear

That's a specimen item out of our big sale of the Gus Pickhardt bankrupt stock of men's hats and furnishing goods. There are two dozen more equally sensational. The announcement of this sale completely swamped us last Saturday, and the buying has been lively ever since. We got Gus Pickhardt's splendid and well known stock from the Trustee in Bankruptcy, and we are offering it at the West Side and North Side Stores at prices never before recorded for men's highgrade hats and summer furnishings. Look these offerings over and you'll decide to invest some loose change in a summer's supply.

Pity the Poor Bakery Workers

Mr. Skiles, of the Skiles Baking union and must not expect to apcompany, says our item of lastweek did his company an injustice. He gives us the following as the scale of wages at his factory, and we

S12. Hours, nine to ten, and overtime paid for."

Now to this we must add a few lacts of our securing. Twelve dollars is not the lowest paid at the Skiles bakery. While there are heads of families working there—head bakers (so-called "first hands") who get as low as $12 a week, there are others—"third hands"—who get as low as $6. The mion minimum is $12. The "second hands" at Skiles get $11. We are not going to have an improved citizenship on such wages, and especially when it costs as much to live as jit does today.

What does Milwaukee scare whether a Patten corners the flour whether a Patten corners the flour
